SULAM: A Career Ladder for Women in Jewish Communal Service and its new publication Good Business: A Best Practices Guide to Retaining and Advancing Women in Jewish Communal Service offers best practices and recommendations for developing policies and programs to enhance work-life balance and to ensure the full participation and advancement of women in the Jewish community. SULAM, with its advisory board comprised of lay and professional leaders in the Chicago community, was made possible by funding from the Jewish Women's Foundation of Chicago.

The Best Practices Guide can be accessed online in its entirety at www.ajcop.org or at www.jcsana.org/local/sulam.pdf

Jewish Communal Professionals of Chicago (JCPC) is a professional organization devoted to enhancing skills and knowledge, facilitating networking and collaboration, and advancing the identity and professionalism of the field of Jewish communal service.

JCPC was founded in 1994 by a group of young professionals looking to expand their opportunities for networking, to continue professional education and development, and to engage in ongoing discussions about current trends and issues in the field of Jewish communal service in addition to the Jewish community at large. JCPC is a local group of the Jewish Communal Service Association of North America www.jcsana.org.

JCPC is open to all professionals working in the Jewish community, including:

- ❖ Chaplains
- ❖ Educators
- ❖ Fundraisers
- ❖ Program Directors
- ❖ Rabbis
- ❖ Social Workers
- ❖ Volunteer Coordinators
- ❖ Youth Workers

Why get involved?

- Enhance leadership and career advancement skills
- Create a peer network across a variety of agencies
- Initiate change within Jewish communal organizations

JCPC is led by a volunteer steering committee comprised of a wide range of professionals from a variety of Jewish communal organizations. From executive level staff to new graduates, JCPC is committed to developing programs that address the unique needs of Jewish communal professionals.
